but as a result, I became far more self-conscious and incredibly attentive of what others say, as a means of picking up on their speech patterns and to spot discrepancies between my speech and theirs.